Accused Killer Surrenders to Kansas Police

Recent College Grad Held for Slaying Trio
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — "I'm tired of running. I want to surrender."

Duane Pope, 22 years old and fresh out of college, said it twice Friday, first to the president of his college and then in a telephone call to police. By surrendering, Pope ended a nationwide search that began a week earlier when the president and two employees of a Big Springs, Neb., bank were shot to death during a holdup.

The FBI took charge of Pope shortly after his surrender and within 90 minutes had him arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Lee Cisel. He then was jailed in lieu of $100,000 bond.

The FBI would not comment on what, if anything, Pope said about the June 4 robbery of the Farmers State Bank of Big Springs when $1,598 was taken or about the deaths of the three employees and serious wounding of a fourth.

Pope called Dr. D. W. Bittering, president of McPherson, (Kan.) College, shortly after checking in at the State Hotel in downtown Kansas City. He said he had heard Dr. Bittering's appeal that he surrender.

"He wanted to know if I would call his parents and how they were reacting to all of the publicity," Dr. Bittering said.

"He also asked me what he could do and I told him to surrender. I also told him to do it where he was, because if he tried to go somewhere else he would be endangering himself."

FBI Agent Karl Dissly said Pope apparently had traveled extensively since he drove his 1939 Buick convertible to Wichita sometime before Monday. He said Pope had been in Dallas; San Diego; Tijuana, Mex.; and Las Vegas since then. Pope flew here from Las Vegas Friday, Dissly said.

Big Springs is about 400 miles north of Roxbury. The bank was robbed around noon by a lone, well-dressed bandit. Shot dead as they lay on the floor at the robber's command were Andreas Kjeldgaard, 77, the president; Glenn Hendrickson, 59, the cashier and Lois Ann Hothan, 35, a bookkeeper. Franklin Kjeldgaard, 25, assistant cashier and Andreas' nephew, also was shot twice but he survived. He was taken to a Denver hospital.

Pope, one of eight children, had been known as an extremely quiet young man. He was something of a gun collector, enjoyed tinkering with his vintage car and was a good athlete. He is 6-foot-2 and weighs 190.

At McPherson College he played football well enough to make an all-conference team. His grades were average and he received a bachelor's degree in industrial arts from Dr. Bittering May 30.

County Treasurer Asks Court's Mercy

PORT CLINTON, Ohio (AP)—An attorney for former Ottawa County Treasurer Howard F. Jimmerman has asked mercy for Jimmerman when he appears Monday for sentencing on an embezzlement charge.

Jimmerman, who resigned Tuesday during a routine audit by state examiners, pleaded guilty Friday to embezzling $14,000 over a 23-year period. His attorney, Oliver True, said Jimmerman has the funds to make full restitution.

IN HIS EARTH CAPSULE — Astronaut Edward H. White waves as he drives off from home in Houston, Tex., to a meeting with NASA officials at the big space complex.

Astronauts Now Slated For Reception, Parades

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — America's space twins prepared today for what fellow astronauts have called "the toughest part of the mission"—the inevitable round of receptions, parades and celebrations.

Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II relaxed at their homes near the Manned

Space Center in Houston, resting for the busy week ahead.

It starts Monday with a ticker tape parade in Chicago. There's a homecoming celebration Tuesday at the University of Michigan, and hometown welcomes Wednesday in Jackson, Mich., for McDivitt, and in San Antonio, Tex., for White.

McDivitt and White got a big surprise Friday — a "little something" from President Johnson in the way of promotions. They changed their gold major's leaves on their Air Force tunics to the silver of lieutenant colonels.

The President's first visit to the Manned Spacecraft Center resulted from a decision made by McDivitt and White. They had been given a choice of receiving the presidential congratulations at the center or the LBJ Ranch. They chose Houston so fellow employees at the center could share the congratulations. Johnson's announcement of the on-the-spot promotions brought shocked expressions to the spacemen and their wives. The astronauts became majors only last December.

While speaking before 4,000 space center employees who sweltered under a hot Texas sun, Johnson also promoted Air Force Maj. L. Gordon Cooper and Virgil I. Grissom to lieutenant colonel.

Grissom was command pilot for the first manned Gemini mission. Cooper is scheduled to command a seven-day mission in late August.

The promotions came after McDivitt and White relived their space feats during a two-hour news conference televised and broadcast nationally.

Dr. Charles Berry, astronaut flight surgeon, told newsmen the excellent physical condition of the two astronauts indicated "go" plans for a seven-day mission in August.

He also said he could see no medical problems to prevent a 14-day flight later in the Gemini program.

One major objective of the Gemini 4 mission was to obtain medical information on astronauts subjected to long stays in space. Berry said two problems are apparent — astronauts need more sleep, and they must drink more water to prevent dehydration.

Second Domer Trial Date To Be Sept. 20

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Robert K. Domer, former Canton investment broker whose first degree murder conviction was reversed by an appellate court ruling, gets a new trial Sept. 20. The new trial date was set Friday.

Domer, 45, was convicted in the death of Howard F. Riddle, 54, an Akron fruit peddler. The prosecution charged Domer burned Riddle to death in an attempt to fake his own death.

Saigon Military Back in Power In Viet Nam

Civilian Cabinet Resigns Quietly; No Tension Felt

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Mounting public pressure and an internal feud were climaxed today by the resignation of South Viet Nam's four-month-old civilian government, which returned power to the generals.

It marked the eighth change of government in the war-torn country since strongman President Ngo Dinh Diem was overthrown and assassinated less than 20 months ago.

Prime Minister Phan Huy Quat and Chief of State Phan Khanh Suu, who had clashed over a Cabinet shakeup, agreed to stay on in caretaker roles with other members of the government.

But the National Charter and the Legislative Council were eliminated and a highly placed source said that "at this point we are starting absolutely from scratch."

Although the situation was still fluid, Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu was serving as a spokesman for the military leaders. Thieu was deputy prime minister and defense minister in the Quat cabinet. Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, the flamboyant commander of the Vietnamese air force, also was viewed as having a strong voice.

But there were no clues as to what form the new government would take.

The step-down was announced in a joint communique by Quat, Suu, and the National Legislative Council after a night meeting between top Vietnamese military and political figures. It came after three weeks of mounting pressure for Quat's resignation from Roman Catholics and other dissident elements.

A high government source emphasized that the development should not be interpreted as another coup.

In the face of growing opposition, Quat this week had turned to the generals to help solve the crisis. The source said he believed the generals had been reluctant to step into the situation, but agreed to take over because of a sense of responsibility they felt stemmed from the Nov. 1, 1963 military coup that ousted President Diem.

Asked if there was any possibility of a return to complete civilian government in the foreseeable future, the source said: "The problem right now is to win the war."

The source said Friday night's decision "represented progress" and, despite the vague state of affairs, "there is no instability."

Kent Student Held in Probe

RAVENNA, Ohio (AP) — A Kent State University student has been arrested as a result of the Ohio Highway Patrol's investigation of minors using false identification papers to be served in Kent taverns.

Ronald M. Earvin, 20, of Stow was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, allegedly selling a 16-year-old Kent youth a driver's license and a draft card for $2.

The investigation was launched after Stow school officials wrote the state liquor director that Stow High School students age 14-18 were being served illegally in some Kent taverns.

Flash Flood Kills 13 In Town; 16 Missing

Flood Survivor Tells Of Raging Water Wall

EDITOR'S NOTE — Morris Nichols, 22, a husky railroad brakeman and a former football player and Golden Gloves fighter, survived Friday's Sanderson flood, battered but not seriously injured. Here is his account of how the raging waters swept away seven members of the John Wesley Johnson family.

By MORRIS NICHOLS
As told to
The Associated Press
FORT STOCKTON, Tex. (AP) — I woke up at 5 o'clock and it was raining real hard. Then water knocked the door of my motel room open. I jumped out of bed and put my pants on and I started for the next cabin because I knew the Johnsons had children.

I hollered at John "Let's get your kids out of here. There's a flood coming." I told him to give me three kids and I'd try to make it to high ground. He said he couldn't open the door, the water was hitting the door so hard, and he told me to go around back. The water was chest deep then.

I walked or swam around the cabin and was in the garage when the big wall hit. I was trapped. I finally got a hold of the door and pulled myself free from the garage. The water was over my head then.

I could see the water rushing out there, turning over cars like they were toys. I tried to get on the roof of the motel but I couldn't pull myself up. Finally I turned loose. I thought I was going to die.

I washed me about 300 yards, turning me over and over. I caught a hold of a telephone pole and straddled it. A car washed in and pinned me to the pole.

I looked back and saw all of the Johnson kids up on top of the motel. John had put them up on the roof through a back window.

The motel started crumbling and it went over and everybody was gone. I knew the kids would die and I couldn't help them. Nobody could help them.

Then the water started splashing over my head and I turned loose of the pole. I went about a quarter of a mile and I was able to touch ground.

I found two of the Johnson children. They were both dead. I was completely dazed. I was hurt, cut, and beat. I found the highest place and sat down on a hill and prayed.

They rescued one of the Johnson boys. He is the only survivor. Their daddy was a big strong man. He might have made it but he probably tried to save his kids and was lost.

As far as I know there was not another person in that motel alive. You can't imagine what happened when that wall of water hit. People were drowning and you just couldn't do anything for them.

Women were looking for their little children. You know they're gone but there's not a damn thing you can do. When I was on that pole I saw a house come down the street with three people on it. It just turned over and I don't know what happened to them.

When it was all over, I was in a daze. I just walked and walked. It was like a dream — a bad dream seeing those children dying like that and you can't do anything about it.

Boy Pleads Innocent

CLEVELAND (AP) — Frank S. Burdel Jr., 16, pleaded innocent Friday to first-degree murder charges in the rape-slaying of Barbara Ann Ambrose, 23, a nurse at Parma Hospital.

Wall of Water Wrecks Homes

11-Inch Cloudburst Causes Disaster

SANDERSON, Tex. (AP) — Trucks with emergency supplies already were raising dust today as a search went on for more bodies in mud-caked Sanderson, devastated by a flash flood which took at least 13 lives.

State Police said 16 other persons were unaccounted for and the death toll was almost certain to mount.

An 11-inch cloudburst sent water gushing 15 feet deep through sluicelike Sanderson Canyon, demolishing 75 houses and a dozen business places, and isolated this far West Texas town for hours Friday. Ironically, the rainfall in this arid spot averages only 16 inches a year.

As roads were slowly reopened, peace officers from 15 counties gathered to hunt on horseback for the missing.

The raging flood waters, although ebbing swiftly, confused efforts to count the dead by washing at least two bodies from graves in the Sanderson cemetery.

Three hundred homeless were fed and sheltered in a grade school. Up to 200 others were taken 65 miles north to Fort Stockton over the first route reopened.

Skies cleared and the sun reappeared to start drying soaked ruins as outside help began arriving in late afternoon.

Two and three feet of mud stood in ruined homes and stores. Debris was left in jumbled heaps 8 to 10 feet tall.

A channel 10 feet deep was carved along the course of a normally dry creek in a canyon crossing Sanderson, a town of 2,350 which is 20 miles from the Mexican border about halfway between San Antonio and El Paso.

All the destruction was on the south side of U.S. 90, which also is the main street.

Up to 11 inches of rain at Longfellow, 20 miles west of here, funneled down the canyon. The gushing torrent swept away some houses with people clinging to them, rose to the eaves of others.

Six members of one family died in the collapse of a motel where they were living. They were the wife and children of John Wesley Johnson, 36, himself reported missing.

Michael Johnson, 12, was the only member of the family who survived. He told of scrambling through a window while his father herded the others to the roof.

Southern Ohio Bids for A-Lab

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern Ohioans backing the Pike County, Ohio, area near Portsmouth as the location for a $280 million atom smasher made a strong bid for the installation at a meeting with the Atomic Energy Commission Friday.

Rep. William H. Harsha, R-Ohio, related the advantages of the site at Piketon near the AEC gaseous diffusion plant.

William Purdy of Portsmouth, who heads a local delegation pushing for the project, presented an impressive brochure outlining advantages of the Piketon area.

Harsha said the brochure "establishes beyond question the fact that our site meets the criteria set forth in the AEC proposal with advantages that far outweigh any purported advantage of any other site."

The group appeared before Dr. Paul McDaniel, director of the AEC research division, and William Bartels, an AEC scientific assistant.

Harsha told McDaniel an engineering survey has shown that the required acreage is available in Pike County to meet AEC specifications, and that the availability of water, electricity, transportation, cultural and educational facilities meets requirements.

Pike County and the 14 counties adjacent to it have an average unemployment rate of 9.3 per cent, more than the national rate, Harsha said in citing the area's need for the installation. Most of those counties are in the Appalachian region, he added.

The 6th District congressman said also that he was authorized to say that Rep. Michael J. Kirwan, D-Ohio, very much favors placing the laboratory at the Pike County location. Kirwan is chairman of a House appropriations subcommittee responsible for approving funds for AEC installations.

Kirwan also believes, Harsha said, that it is not good management to place the project in an area of full employment as opposed to an area in the economically hard-hit Appalachia region.

He concluded his testimony by noting that the AEC owns 3,200 acres in the Pike County area, of which 1,900 are for the gaseous diffusion plant and 1,300 are not being used. He said the market value of 1,700 acres which would have to be acquired is estimated at $327,000, and if this is a factor, local interests would provide the land without charge.

Appearing before the committee besides Harsha and Purdy were Robert Mucker, Chillicothe; Charles Snook, Portsmouth; State Reps. Roy Bevins of Pike County and Vernal Riffe of Portsmouth; L. M. Kimble, Portsmouth, and F. Shepherd and Robert Wolfe, representing corporations in the region.

Earlier Friday, Gov. James A. Rhodes continued to back the Ravenna Arsenal in northeastern Ohio as the best location for the federal installation, de-

Once Around Roundtown

MONDAY is Flag Day . . . And National Flag week will be observed through the following Saturday . . .

Mayor Ben H. Gordon has issued a proclamation here commemorating the special day and week honoring the 188th birthday of the Flag of the United States. . . The spirit of the occasion will be expressed in Circleville through several ceremonies, including tomorrow's dedication of a new flag pole at the BPO Elks Home.

BIKE SAFETY CHECK — A bike safety check and registration program got under way today in Circleville. City Patrolman Leonard Sines attaches a registration plate on the bicycle of Paul Jacobs, 110 Nicholas Drive, after completion of the check of brakes, horn, lights, seat and tires. One youngster waving a dollar bill at Police Chief Robert Temple said he "had the money, but the stores were sold out of bike horns." Dozens of youths were at all check stations early today.

Beat Poets Outpour for Fat Cats

LONDON (AP) — Beat poets outpoured for the fat cats in rhymes that ranged from four-letter terms to flowers, and man it was like outworldly.

It was like profitable too. An audience of 5,000 shelled out an estimated $5,900 for Friday night's way-out performance at London's staid Albert Hall.

Whether the audience understood all they heard is problematical. They enjoyed it anyway. This was beat poetry and the listeners were not only switched on, they were fused.

No one was more happy with the success of the venture than dark-haired artist Jill Triebner. This 25-year-old English girl gambled her savings of $1,736 as the stake money.

That was what she paid to rent the hall so that her friend, New York beat poet Daniel Richter, could read some of his creations in public. She also invited a whole raft of beat poets currently making the London scene.

Not only will ill get her money back, but she and her friends made a profit estimated at around $4,200. They plan to use the proceeds to provide a poets cooperative with a hall for further readings.

Some 16 beat poets and a disembodied voice played their part in what the organizers called a "spontaneous planet-chant carnival."

There was Allen Ginsberg, the daddy of them all, sitting cross-legged and chanting away while he played the Tibetan finger cymbals.

Alexander Trocchi, peered out at the audience — men in business suits, striped sweatshirts, and denims; girls in suits, day dresses and jeans.

Some of the poet were hard to hear. Others were too loud. While they declaimed some stood, some sat, some even lay down.

One of the hits of the evening was San Francisco's Lawrence Ferlinghetti who preferred an ode to sex repeating one unprintable word 50 times. When he declared: "I am waiting for the age of anxiety to drop dead," the audience cheered with delight.

Wall of Water Wrecks Homes

11-Inch Cloudburst Causes Disaster

SANDERSON, Tex. (AP) — Trucks with emergency supplies already were raising dust today as a search went on for more bodies in mud-caked Sanderson, devastated by a flash flood which took at least 13 lives.

State Police said 16 other persons were unaccounted for and the death toll was almost certain to mount.

An 11-inch cloudburst sent water gushing 15 feet deep through sluice-like Sanderson Canyon, demolished 75 houses and a dozen business places, and isolated this far West Texas town for hours Friday. Ironically, the rainfall in this arid spot averages only 16 inches a year.

As roads were slowly reopened, peace officers from 15 counties gathered to hunt on horseback for the missing.

The raging flood waters, although ebbing swiftly, confused efforts to count the dead by washing at least two bodies from graves in the Sanderson cemetery.

Three hundred homeless were fed and sheltered in a grade school. Up to 200 others were taken 65 miles north to Fort Stockton over the first route reopened.

Skies cleared and the sun reappeared to start drying soaked ruins as outside help began arriving in late afternoon.

Two and three feet of mud stood in ruined homes and stores. Debris was left in jumbled heaps 10 to 15 feet tall.

A channel 10 feet deep was carved along the course of a normally dry creek in a canyon crossing Sanderson, a town of 2,350 which is 20 miles from the Mexican border about halfway between San Antonio and El Paso.

All the destruction was on the south side of U.S. 90, which also is the main street.

Up to 11 inches of rain at Longfellow, 20 miles west of here, funneled down the canyon. The gushing torrent swept away some houses with people clinging to them, rose to the eaves of others.

Six members of one family died in the collapse of a motel where they were living. They were the wife and children of John Wesley Johnson, 36, himself reported missing.

Michael Johnson, 12, was the only member of the family who survived. He told of scrambling through a window while his father herded the others to the roof.

Beat Poets Outpour for Fat Cats

LONDON (AP) — Beat poets outpoured for the fat cats in rhymes that ranged from four-letter terms to flowers, and man it was like outworldly.

It was like profitable too. An audience of 5,000 shelled out an estimated $5,900 for Friday night's way-out performance at London's staid Albert Hall.

Whether the audience understood all they heard is problematical. They enjoyed it anyway. This was beat poetry and the listeners were not only switched on, they were fused.

No one was more happy with the success of the venture than dark-haired artist Jill Triebner. This 25-year-old English girl gambled her savings of $1,736 as the stake money.

That was what she paid to rent the hall so that her friend, New York beat poet Daniel Richter, could read some of his creations in public. She also invited a whole raft of beat poets currently making the London scene.

Not only will ill get her money back, but she and her friends made a profit estimated at around $4,200. They plan to use the proceeds to provide a poets cooperative with a hall for further readings.

Some 16 beat poets and a disembodied voice played their part in what the organizers called a "spontaneous planet-chant carnival."

There was Allen Ginsberg, the daddy of them all, sitting cross-legged and chanting away while he played the Tibetan finger cymbals.

Alexander Trocchi, peered out at the audience — men in business suits, striped sweatshirts,

and denims; girls in suits, day dresses and jeans.

Some of the poet were hard to hear. Others were too loud. While they declaimed some stood, some sat, some even lay down.

One of the hits of the evening was San Francisco's Lawrence Ferlinghetti who proffered an ode to sex repeating one unprintable word 50 times. When he declared: "I am waiting for the age of anxiety to drop dead," the audience cheered with delight.

Once Around Roundtown

MONDAY is Flag Day . . . And National Flag week will be observed through the following Saturday.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon has issued a proclamation here commemorating the special day and week honoring the 188th birthday of the Flag of the United States. . . The spirit of the occasion will be expressed in Circleville through several ceremonies, including tomorrow's dedication of a new flag pole at the BPO Elks Home.

BIKE SAFETY CHECK — A bike safety check and registration program got under way today in Circleville. City Patrolman Leonard Sines attaches a registration plate on the bicycle of Paul Jacobs, 110 Nicholas Drive, after completion of the check of brakes, horn, lights, seat and tires. One youngster driving a dollar bill at Police Chief Robert Temple said he "had the money, but the stores were sold out of bike horns." Dozens of youths were at all check stations early today.

Which sheet should you buy—muslin or percale? What is the difference?

Years ago our grandmothers bought sheeting by the yard, hemmed it, and made their own bed sheets of unbleached muslin for everyday use, or of linen for greater luxury.

In the course of time, manufacturers began to make up and sell sheets already bleached and hemmed. Homemakers soon found it convenient to buy them this way. Today only a few homemakers buy unbleached muslin by the yard to make their own sheets.

There are two kinds of cotton sheets and pillow cases—muslin and percale. Muslin is heavier, due to the thicker yarn; feels coarse to the touch; and is woven with fewer threads to each square inch. Percale is light weight, due to the finer yarn; feels smooth and soft; and is woven with more threads to each square inch.

The four different types of muslin sheets are: back filled muslin (fewer than 112 threads to each square inch); light weight muslin (not less than 112 thread count); medium weight muslin (not less than 128 thread count); and heavy weight muslin (not less than 140 thread count).

The two types of percale are: type 180 (not less than 180 thread count) and finest quality percale (not less than 200 thread count).

The quality of the sheet depends on the cotton used, how the thread is spun, how closely the sheet is woven and the finish and workmanship.

Here are some important points to consider when buying sheets:

Suitability — choose the type of sheet most practical for the person, place and need.

Wear — a firm close weave; even threads; strong tape sellage.

Appearance — even weave; smooth finish; good workmanship.

Comfort — smooth "feel" or texture to insure comfort, restful sleep.

Laundability — a weight

easy for home washing, economical at laundry pound rates.

Size — the correct width for the bed; a satisfactory length.
Price — choose the best quality you can afford for the purpose.

Brand — buy sheets with a brand name in which you have confidence.

To fit a bed properly, a sheet should be the right width and a satisfactory length to allow sufficient margin for tucking securely under the mattress at side and ends; to protect mattress and blankets; and to assure a comfortable bed for the sleeper.

For a single or twin bed that is 39 inches wide, a 63 or 72-inch wide sheet should be used.
For a 54-inch wide double bed use an 81 or 90-inch wide sheet.

Sheets are made in three standard lengths. The 108-inch is the most satisfactory for most needs. The other lengths are 99 and 113 inches.

The 108-inch is the torn length.
Hems take approximately 5 inches (top hem 4 — bottom hem 1) so the sheet you buy as 108 inches actually measures about 108 after hemming.

A well fitting pillow case fits smoothly, slips on and off the pillow easily and looks neat. If too tight, it makes the pillow hard and lumpy, may cause rips at the seams. If too loose, the case may bunch up, wrinkle uncomfortably, look untidy.

A correctly-fitting pillow case is 3 to 4 inches longer and about 1½ to 2 inches wider than the pillow. Be sure to measure your pillow before buying cases.

Rotate the bed linens so that the same ones are never used twice in succession.

First Safety Pin

ATHENS (AP) — A large bronze safety pin, perhaps the world's first, is on display in the archaeological museum at Iraklion, Crete. It dates back to Minoan civilization, about 4,000 years ago.

Poison Ivy Is Controlled By Chemicals

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

One thing good about poison ivy — it's easy to control with chemicals.

The three most satisfactory herbicides are a mixture of 2, 4-D and 2,4,5-T (commonly sold as a brushkiller), amitrol and Ammate. Each herbicide will give 100 per cent kill of poison ivy if applied properly.

Foliage should be wet thoroughly to the point of runoff.
June and July are ideal months for applying the materials.

Both home gardeners and farmers follow directions on the labels of containers when preparing and applying spray solutions. Each of the chemicals may be applied with a power-driven sprayer, a knapsack sprayer or a sprinkling can.
None of the three is poisonous to animals or caustic to the skin.

A teaspoon of household detergent in each gallon of spray material will help cut the way on the leaf surface, making the treatment more effective.

THE LEAVES of poison ivy are red when they first appear in spring, but they turn green as they expand. The leaves on different ivy plants, and even on the same plant, may vary widely in size and shape.

Edges of the leaves may be smooth, toothed, or slightly lobed. Poison ivy may grow as a vine, a shrub or a small tree.

The poisonous material is in the sap of the plants, which are poisonous all year. But most cases of poisoning occur in spring and summer after the leaves appear.

Humans can be poisoned indirectly by pets or garden tools that have come in contact with the plants. The poison also may be carried in smoke from burning ivy plants.

Wise Farmers

Clean Bins

Each Year

Insects that infest stored

wheat and other grain in Ohio are carried over from the previous year in infested grain or dirt around the edge of grain bins.

Farmers should clean grain bins thoroughly before filling the bins with new grain. Sweeping up all old grain and cobwebs that hold grain dust, and cleaning ceilings, walls, and floors of bins will help considerably.

Residual sprays of methoxychlor or malathion will not contaminate grain added to the bin later. Methoxychlor should be applied at a rate of one pound of 50 per cent wet-table powder in 2½ gallons of water, or malathion at a rate of one pint of 57 per cent emulsifiable concentrate in three gallons of water.

Bins should be completely dry before filled with grain.

They say that spraying the empty bin will eliminate any old infestation, providing the bin has been swept clean beforehand.

Farmers should be sure to clean up and burn crop residues outside and beneath the bin.

Sheep Dipping Project Here Scheduled To Start Monday

SHEEP DIPPING — Lester Brown of Cardington will handle the annual sheep dipping program scheduled to get under way Monday in Pickaway County. The program calls for the complete submergence of each animal in a solution of toxaphene and water. An example of the procedure is shown here.

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

The annual Pickaway County
Sheep Improvement Committee approved sheep dipping program will start Monday.

Farmers who prefer a later date will have the opportunity to dip their sheep during the week of July 19.

The Sheep Improvement Committee has again recommended Lester Brown of Cardington to do the dipping. He is registered as a qualified sheep

dipper in the State of Ohio.

To be registered a person must agree to use a livestock formulation of toxaphene at three quarts per 200 gallons of water and to submerge sheep for 30 seconds.

THE DIPPING program in Pickaway County last year included 40 per cent of all the sheep population. This operation is highly effective for controlling sheep scab, ticks, lice and fly strikes. The dipping program will be checked by state and federal veterinarians.

The dipping program is presently being set up on a township basis. Flock owners that have not enrolled their flocks may do so by calling the County Extension office, GR 4-5828.

A tour to the State House and the Science and Health Museum on June 18 was scheduled.

Demonstrations were given by Jeanie Bartholomew on how to make the most of your money when you shop. Cindy Smith on what a sewing kit should contain and Kathy O'Brien on aids in pinning on a pattern.

Which sheet should you buy—muslin or percale? What is the difference?

Years ago our grandmothers bought sheeting by the yard, hemmed it, and made their own bed sheets of unbleached muslin for everyday use, or of linen for greater luxury.

In the course of time, manufacturers began to make up and sell sheets already bleached and hemmed. Homemakers soon found it convenient to buy them this way. Today only a few homemakers buy unbleached muslin by the yard to make their own sheets.

There are two kinds of cotton sheets and pillow cases—muslin and percale. Muslin is heavier, due to the thicker yarn; feels coarse to the touch; and is woven with fewer threads to each square inch. Percale is light weight, due to the finer yarn; feels smooth and soft; and is woven with more threads to each square inch.

The four different types of muslin sheets are: back filled muslin (fewer than 112 threads to each square inch); light weight muslin (not less than 112 thread count); medium weight muslin (not less than 128 thread count); and heavy weight muslin (not less than 140 thread count).

The two types of percale are: type 180 (not less than 180 thread count) and finest quality percale (not less than 200 thread count).

The quality of the sheet depends on the cotton used, how the thread is spun, how closely the sheet is woven and the finish and workmanship.

Here are some important points to consider when buying sheets:

Suitability — choose the type of sheet most practical for the person, place and need.

Wear — a firm close weave; even threads; strong tape selvage.

Appearance — even weave; smooth finish; good workmanship.

Comfort — smooth "feel" or texture to insure comfort, restful sleep.

Laundryability — a weight

easy for home washing, economical at laundry pound rates.

Size — the correct width for the bed; a satisfactory length.

Price — choose the best quality you can afford for the purpose.

Brand — buy sheets with a brand name in which you have confidence.

To fit a bed properly, a sheet should be the right width and a satisfactory length to allow sufficient margin for tucking securely under the mattress at side and ends; to protect mattress and blankets; and to assure a comfortable bed for the sleeper.

For a single or twin bed that is 39 inches wide, a 63 or 72-inch wide sheet should be used. For a 54-inch wide double bed use an 81 or 90-inch wide sheet.

Sheets are made in three standard lengths. The 108-inch is the most satisfactory for most needs. The other lengths are 99 and 113 inches.

A well fitting pillow case fits smoothly, slips on and off the pillow easily and looks neat. If too tight, it makes the pillow hard and lumpy, may cause rips at the seams. If too loose, the case may bunch up, wrinkle uncomfortably, look untidy.

A correctly-fitting pillow case is 3 to 4 inches longer and about 1½ to 2 inches wider than the pillow. Be sure to measure your pillow before buying cases.

Rotate the bed linens so that the same ones are never used twice in succession.

Farmers who prefer a later date will have the opportunity to dip their sheep during the week of July 19.

The Sheep Improvement Committee has again recommended Lester Brown of Cardington to do the dipping. He is registered as a qualified sheep dipper in the State of Ohio.

To be registered a person must agree to use a livestock formulation of toxaphene at three quarts per 200 gallons of water and to submerge sheep for 30 seconds.

THE DIPPING program in Pickaway County last year included 40 per cent of all the sheep population. This operation is highly effective for controlling sheep scab, ticks, lice and fly strikes. The dipping program will be checked by state and federal veterinarians.

The dipping program is presently being set up on a township basis. Flock owners that have not enrolled their flocks may do so by calling the County Extension office, GR 4-5828.

A tour to the State House and the Science and Health Museum on June 18 was scheduled. Demonstrations were given by Jeanie Bartholomew on how to make the most of your money when you shop, Cindy Smith on what a sewing kit should contain and Kathy O'Brien on aids in pinning on a pattern.

Almost Got Away

KINGMAN, Kan. (AP) — Jim Mills of Hutchinson, Kan., had to catch a five-pound catfish three times before he landed it. Mills caught the fish on Kingman Lake but the line broke before he could pull it in.

Mills, 78, grabbed the broken line with the fish on it and pulled it in. As he held it up for his wife to see the fish flipped off and back into the lake.

Mills jumped into the water, grabbed the fish with his hands and carried it well ashore — for keeps.

Japanese Beetle Program

Slated in This Community

Several metal insect traps will be placed in Circleville during the next few days to obtain information on the occurrence of Japanese beetles.

The traps will serve as an aid in determining the need for control measures. Placement of the traps here was announced by John M. Stackhouse, director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture.

Most of the traps will be placed in residential sections. Stackhouse has requested residents to cooperate by allowing the gear to be located on their properties for a period of about six weeks.

It was pointed out that the traps function best when placed in sunny locations at least 15 feet away from host plants. Residents are asked not to move them without first consulting the inspector.

THE Japanese beetle trapping program is carried out by the Division of Plant Industry of the Ohio Department of Agriculture in cooperation with local officials and the Plant Pest Control Division of the United States Department of Agriculture.

In most cities and towns, local students will serve as trap inspectors. They will carry identification which will be produced on request, according to Harold L. Porter, chief of the division. Local police will be notified about the work before trap setting begins.

The Japanese beetle is an introduced plant pest. It appears

Dominican War Turns Into Economic Conflict

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican civil war is turning into an economic conflict with the United States playing a major role.

The battlefield is still Santo Domingo. The capital is becoming even more divided as a result of the economic struggle between the junta and rebel factions.

With U.S. aid, the economy is being reorganized in hopes it can operate without Santo Domingo's downtown business district, the rebel stronghold.

Some U.S. officials believe that if the rebels can be bypassed economically, they might be pressured into a political settlement. Negotiations to form a compromise government are stalemated.

The insurgents have two powerful weapons in the economic arena, however. Their territory includes the principal banks and the port where most of the nation's imports are normally unloaded.

All the nation's factories are located in territory controlled by the junta, and more than 90 per cent are operating again. But many owners have the money in downtown banks which are shut. Their raw materials are sitting in warehouses overseas because port facilities to unload them here are not available.

The owner of a shoe polish factory said he was forced to shut down this week.

There are 14,000 troops here, each with boots to be shined," he said. "The demand for shoe polish is high, but the waxes I need to make it are stuck in a warehouse in Panama. I can't get dock space to unload them in the Dominican Republic."

Four small ports are trying to handle the traffic that usually comes into Santo Domingo.

But these ports are equipped to handle the export of sugar, coffee, tobacco and other agricultural products. They do not have the dock space, warehouses or unloading facilities to handle import cargoes in volume.

Hector Aristy, minister to the presidency of the rebel regime, says the port of Santo Domingo will remain closed to any ship carrying cargo which might help the junta's economy.

Imports of wheat, a basic necessity, have stopped. Normally wheat is stored in huge silos overlooking the harbor, then ground into flour at a nearby

Bonfire May Trim Hospital Bills

RAYTOWN, Mo. (AP) — The Warren J. Olson family gathered solemnly around a bonfire in the vacant lot behind the house.

There were Mr. and Mrs. Olson; Bridget 10, her left arm in a cast; Patricia, 12; Rita 9; Warren G., 7, and Theresa 6. Kathryn, 14, was at a neighbor's baby-sitting — despite a sprained arm.

"We have been keeping the emergency room at St. Mary's Hospital busy," said Olson. Ashes to ashes, six skateboards.

mill. Plans are being considered to grind the flour in Puerto Rico and ship it here in sacks, a much more expensive process.

The U.S. government has offset some of the money shortage by distributing $9.2 million since the rebellion began on April 24. The Organization of American States got $6 million of this to pay the salaries of thousands of government employees for April. Some rebels also were paid.

The rebel regime says the banks can open downtown under certain conditions. These include the right to check private accounts if the rebels believe the money in these accounts was obtained illegally from state funds.

Civil Rights Aides Moving Into Dixie Again

NEW YORK (AP)—The summer's first contingent of volunteer civil rights workers moved into the South this week for what they hope will be three months of quiet but productive work. Hard on their heels are thousands more, many of them students born, raised or educated in areas similar to those in which they will be assigned.

By the first weeks in July, volunteers representing all the major civil rights groups will have fanned into Negro communities in most Southern states, with the emphasis on Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina.

This year, instead of cooperating under one project as they did last year in Mississippi the major civil rights organizations plan separate campaigns. They range from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's emphasis in quiet, orderly voter registration to potentially troublesome political organizations, including the formation of unions, backed by the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

This week about 100 volunteers, mostly from the South are gathering at Frogmore, S.C. for a three-day orientation before they begin voter registration work for the NAACP in South Carolina.

In that state, the NAACP says about 1,000 members of their youth groups have pledged a door-to-door voter sign-up campaign with a minimum of help from outside the state.

Similar NAACP projects, using between 800 and 1,200 volunteers from all over the country, are scheduled to begin June 11 in Alabama and July 5 in Mississippi.

Another 400 volunteers, primarily Negro college students from the South, are taking part this week in a five-day Southern regional student conference at Tuskegee, Ala.

They are scheduled to discuss programs they would like to see implemented in their own communities. Out of this conference, the student coordinating committee leaders have said, will come part of the organization's program.

The coordinating committee also plans workshops and institutes in Arkansas, Alabama, southwest Georgia and Mississippi to help Negro communities find ways of fighting and winning their own battles.

The Congress of Racial Equality, which played a large part in last year's Mississippi summer project, is turning its main efforts to Louisiana, with other projects in northern Florida and South Carolina.

About 200 CORE volunteers are scheduled to begin orientation June 20 in Waveland, Miss., for projects that include developing community libraries, schools to teach literacy, voter registration, distribution of food and clothing, organizing farmers leagues and co-operatives, and helping Negroes take advantage of various federal programs, including the federal anti-poverty campaign.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, under the leadership of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is spearheading a Negro voter registration drive in Selma and other parts of Alabama's "Black Belt."

It also plans expansion of a project in an effort to double the 150,000 Negroes now registered in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Louisiana.

Dominican War Turns Into Economic Conflict

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Dominican civil war is turning into an economic conflict with the United States playing a major role.

The battlefield is still Santo Domingo. The capital is becoming even more divided as a result of the economic struggle between the junta and rebel factions.

With U.S. aid, the economy is being reorganized in hopes it can operate without Santo Domingo's downtown business district, the rebel stronghold.

Some U.S. officials believe that if the rebels can be bypassed economically, they might be pressured into a political settlement. Negotiations to form a compromise government are stalemated.

The insurgents have two powerful weapons in the economic arena, however. Their territory includes the principal banks and the port where most of the nation's imports are normally unloaded.

All the nation's factories are located in territory controlled by the junta, and more than 90 per cent are operating again. But many owners have the money in downtown banks which are shut. Their raw materials are sitting in warehouses overseas because port facilities to unload them here are not available.

The owner of a shoe polish factory said he was forced to shut down this week.

There are 14,000 troops here, each with boots to be shined," he said. "The demand for shoe polish is high, but the waxes I need to make it are stuck in a warehouse in Panama. I can't get dock space to unload them in the Dominican Republic."

Four small ports are trying to handle the traffic that usually comes into Santo Domingo.

But these ports are equipped to handle the export of sugar, coffee, tobacco and other agricultural products. They do not have the dock space, warehouses or unloading facilities to handle import cargoes in volume.

Hector Aristy, minister to the presidency of the rebel regime, says the port of Santo Domingo will remain closed to any ship carrying cargo which might help the junta's economy.

Imports of wheat, a basic necessity, have stopped. Normally wheat is stored in huge silos overlooking the harbor, then ground into flour at a nearby

Something Lacking

Many explanations have been attempted for the unrest, the demonstrations and the outright riots which have swept college campuses in recent months. Leftist extremists with their own pots to boil of course have taken advantage of some situations and created others, but the fact is inescapable that many college students have pent up feelings of frustration just waiting to be cultivated.

Why?

Obviously the troubles which put the University of California at Berkeley, practically out of business for several weeks and caused major, if less serious, demonstrations on other campuses are more than manifestations of the usual college spring fever.

Until a better explanation appears, Dean Joseph F. Kauffman of the University of Wisconsin seems to have offered one of the more logical analyses. The dean says at least some of the blame is due to the "crass opportunism" and selfishness of faculty members.

Citing the mad dash of the average faculty for government grants and juicy research projects as a quicker road to advancement and riches, the educator sees such secondary activities detracting from the primary objective of the university — to collect intellectual talent under one roof and to pass the knowledge accumulated by this talent on to the students.

Professors who devote little time to classroom instruction are promoting an impersonal type of education through proctors and mechanical aids which, from the student's point of view, is entirely unsatisfactory.

Time and again students caught up in the campus uproars of recent months have complained about a lack of identity on campus. They are tired of being a number in an auditorium listening to a lecture by someone they will never have a chance to talk to and who doesn't even know they are there.

Dean Kauffman may not have endeared himself to his colleagues with his frank explanation, but if he causes just a few professors to reassess their purpose in life, the profession will be improved. Students once again might return to their classrooms with something bordering on enthusiasm.

Automation Reassurance

Automation, that bugaboo of these times, is having quite a spate of effects in practically all activities of the human species. Everywhere around us, its expression and practice are visible, from the newfangled stoves that think to the mighty computers that keep our space vehicles aloft while spacemen float outside their cages at 17,000 miles an hour.

There is an argument raging unabated between the side which contends that automation is a very good thing and that which maintains it brings on only evils.

In an effort to bring enlightenment to the disputants, the elaboration of Charles L. Bennett, an Oklahoma newspaperman, to the International Press Institute deserves mention.

Editor Bennett insists that automation can never replace newspaper editors and reporters.

See, automation is a good thing.

New Threat in Britain

Great Britain has come out of many a disastrous conflict scathed but sound. There is one now brewing on the green isles of Britain, however, that might prove the undoing even of the doughty John Bull.

The Federation of Women's Institutes (440,000 members) and the National Union of Townswomen's Guilds (215,000 members) are preparing to battle.

The Women's Institutes, founded 50 years ago to provide programs of interest and entertainment for housewives in Britain's scattered villages, think they have outgrown their self-imposed limitation of working only in towns and villages of 4,000 population or less. They are preparing to move into larger communities.

The Townswomen's Guilds, which exist in those well-populated areas, consider this out and out poaching.

The U. S. can only regard this as clearly a threat to the internal peace of a major ally. In view of Prime Minister Wilson's recent brave stand with Washintgon on Viet Nam, doubtless President Johnson will be ready to give any aid and comfort British males will need if their womenfolk actually come to the point of open warfare.

New War Slang Developing

By HAL BOYLE

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Leaves from a war reporter's notebook:

Every military campaign creates new slang and fresh expressions that make our English language more colorful.

The war in South Viet Nam has produced a number of terms already — and more will follow as the fighting goes on.

For example, French maps are used here that measure distances in kilometers rather than in miles. But no one calls a kilometer a kilometer. It's a "click."

In Korea, the enemy was referred to as "gooks." Here they are called the Viet Cong, but U.S. Marines have shortened this to "them Congs."

But by far the most widely used expression is "sorry about that." It is ironical in nature and can be translated roughly as meaning, "I know you've got big troubles, but why do you think that makes you any different from me? Solve them yourself."

Many of the servicemen now are wearing "sorry about that" shoulder patches sewn on to their uniforms by Chinese or Indian tailors. When someone starts to pour out his woes to

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The earlier that deafness is discovered in an infant or a young child, the greater are his chances for ultimate happiness.

When parents who suspect the possibility of deafness fortify themselves with the hope that "time will make a difference," they merely delude themselves and waste valuable time that should be devoted to the earliest possible training program.

In an effort to determine the hearing status of very young children many ingenious tests have been tried. Each test contributes information about the child's hearing.

Now, a new instrument, the Aprinton, is being used to study hearing by observing the reflexes of the newborn child.

The instrument produces a loud sound which calls forth a reaction in children who can hear. The child may become startled, draw up his arms and legs, blink his eyes and turn his head, indicating that he hears.

The absence of response alerts the physician and the family to the possibility of a hearing impairment.

What can be done for a child who is born totally deaf? Even in the totally deaf child there remain islands of hearing which can be used for training purposes.

Hearing aids can be used early in infancy to develop these islands into some useful kind of hearing. The vibrations that these children feel are put to good use in their education.

Highly trained specialists in the science of audiology teach speech reading (lip reading) with brilliantly conceived educational devices.

Parents are given specific directions for the psychological support so necessary to the good adjustment of the child. With proper and concentrated teaching, the completely deaf and the moderately deaf child can be helped to be a happy and productive human being.

What organizations can offer help to the deaf child and his family?

The American Hearing Society, in Washington, D.C., has many Leagues for the Hard of Hearing, in cities throughout the country.

The Alexander Graham Bell Association, Washington, D. C., publishes booklets that furnish valuation information.

more serious bearing on the nation's economic prospects.

Rumors can race through Wall Street and be disproved and forgotten. But just how much importance do most Americans now place in such price gyrations? Or on stock traders' views of economic prospects when these vary from the official ones in Washington or those aired by corporate executives?

Stock traders try to guess ahead of time which way the economy is headed and how prospects for individual companies will change. This brokerage boardroom preoccupation makes traders extra-sensitive to rumors, however wrong they may prove to be.

But the stock market's scorecard in this game isn't too impressive. The market crashes following President John F. Kennedy's assassination, the Bay of Tonkin acceleration of the Viet Nam conflict and like events were quickly reversed. It took a little longer, but the market erased the big drop of May and June 1962 and went on to new heights.

Business executives were far less disturbed by these market breaks than were the traders. This year corporate chiefs have been steadily upgrading their plans for expansion of plant and equipment. This is based on belief that the economy will continue to grow and that new productive facilities can be put to profitable use.

Could the tremors on Wall Street this week cause corporate directors to revise or shelve such plans? This could slow down the economy much more than the loss of paper profits on the stock exchanges.

Business leaders are aware of the age of the economic upswing, now in its 52nd month. They are aware of the Viet Nam, Dominican and other world trouble spots. They've long known about the balance of payments problem. They still seem to believe that the economy will continue to expand.

Consumers are another matter. In recent years they've ignored the stock market gyrations. The big crash in 1962 had little effect on consumer spending largely because personal incomes continued to rise and because most of the damage seemed to be confined to stock traders themselves.

And because consumers went on spending, business took heart and in time started another round of increased spending for plant and equipment.

Together this kept the economy on its upward course. In turn, this brought the stock market back in line. Many fledgling stocks that had been bid up too high were left behind. Whether the price break will frighten business executives and consumers remains to be seen. At the moment the odds seem to be it won't.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

The earlier that deafness is discovered in an infant or a young child, the greater are his chances for ultimate happiness.

When parents who suspect the possibility of deafness fortify themselves with the hope that "time will make a difference," they merely delude themselves and waste valuable time that should be devoted to the earliest possible training program.

In an effort to determine the hearing status of very young children many ingenious tests have been tried. Each test contributes information about the child's hearing.

Now, a new instrument, the Aprinton, is being used to study hearing by observing the reflexes of the newborn child.

The instrument produces a loud sound which calls forth a reaction in children who can hear. The child may become startled, draw up his arms and legs, blink his eyes and turn his head, indicating that he hears.

The absence of response alerts the physician and the family to the possibility of a hearing impairment.

What can be done for a child who is born totally deaf? Even in the totally deaf child there remain islands of hearing which can be used for training purposes.

Hearing aids can be used early in infancy to develop these islands into some useful kind of hearing. The vibrations that these children feel are put to good use in their education.

Highly trained specialists in the science of audiology teach speech reading (lip reading) with brilliantly conceived educational devices.

Parents are given specific directions for the psychological support so necessary to the good adjustment of the child. With proper and concentrated teaching, the completely deaf and the moderately deaf child can be helped to be a happy and productive human being.

What organizations can offer help to the deaf child and his family? The American Hearing Society, in Washington, D.C., has many Leagues for the Hard of Hearing, in cities throughout the country.

The Alexander Graham Bell Association, Washington, D.C., publishes booklets that furnish valuation information.

Many hospitals and universities have large hearing and speech clinics. The American Medical Association in Chicago, and the American Hearing and Speech Association in Washington, D.C. are excellent sources of references.

Can surgery bring back the hearing of a deaf child? There is as yet no operation that can restore the hearing of a child born with nerve deafness. Sometimes, there are congenital bone defects of the ear and the ear canal that can be repaired with surgery. Hearing may then return if the hearing mechanism itself is intact.

With the American Football League and the National Basketball Association planning to add additional teams to their loops, pro team sport may not be getting any bigger but it's certainly becoming more numerous.

Letter To The Editor

To the Editor:

The Pickaway County Unit of the American Cancer Society expresses its heartfelt thanks to everyone who helped to make the Cancer Benefit Variety Show the fine success it was.

Well over $325 has been realized from the combined efforts of the talented performers, the business concerns who donated their services, the many, many people who provided costumes, wigs and props and the fine responsive audience made the production worthwhile.

Special thanks to Fitzpatrick's, Merle Norman Studio for the makeup, Circleville High School and its janitor for the facilities and services, Mrs. Tom Bennett who served as MC, the Logan Elm boys octet, the CHS triple trio, the Curtain Callers, Rev. more serious bearing on the nation's economic prospects.

Rumors can race through Wall Street and be disproved and forgotten. But just how much importance do most Americans now place in such price gyrations? Or on stock traders' views of economic prospects when these vary from the official ones in Washington or those aired by corporate executives?

Stock traders try to guess ahead of time which way the economy is headed and how prospects for individual companies will change. This brokerage boardroom preoccupation makes traders extraneous to rumors, however wrong they may prove to be.

But the stock market's scorecard in this game isn't too impressive. The market crashes following President John F. Kennedy's assassination, the Bay of Tonkin acceleration of the Viet Nam conflict and like events were quickly reversed. It took a little longer, but the market erased the big drop of May and June 1962 and went on to new heights.

Business executives were far less disturbed by these market breaks than were the traders. This year corporate chiefs have been steadily upgrading their plans for expansion of plant and equipment. This is based on belief that the economy will continue to grow and that new productive facilities can be put to profitable use.

Could the tremors on Wall Street this week cause corporate directors to revise or shelve such plans? This could slow down the economy much more than the loss of paper profits on the stock exchanges.

Business leaders are aware of the age of the economic upswing, now in its 52nd month. They are aware of the Viet Nam, Dominican and other world trouble spots. They've long known about the balance of payments problem. They still seem to believe that the economy will continue to expand.

Consumers are another matter. In recent years they've ignored the stock market gyrations. The big crash in 1962 had little effect on consumer spending largely because personal incomes continued to rise and because most of the damage seemed to be confined to stock traders themselves.

And because consumers went on spending, business took heart and in time started another round of increased spending for plant and equipment.

Together this kept the economy on its upward course. In turn, this brought the stock market back in line. Many fledgling stocks that had been bid up too high were left behind. Whether the price break will frighten business executives and consumers remains to be seen. At the moment the odds seem to be it won't.

Every President Concerned with U.S. Security

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — "In those terrible early hours, we did what we had to do."

It was President Johnson, explaining to the nation the rush of American troops into the Dominican Republic.

It could also have been an explanation for American involvement in Southeast Asia, including the bombing of North Viet Nam.

It could have been almost any other president from George Washington on up, explaining the latest twist or turn of American foreign policy over the decades.

In the light of history, many actions by presidents in the foreign field have been unsavory.

But, no matter how they look now, for all the presidents the main interests have always been the self-interest and security of the United States.

The $110 billion given in economic and military aid since the end of World War II is an example.

It was generous. It was full of human considerations. But always its chief purpose was to shore up non-Communist nations to prevent a Communist takeover, which the United States didn't want.

There have been two sturdy, persistent guides in American foreign policy: the Monroe Doctrine of isolation, up to the last World War; and, ever since, the Truman Doctrine of involvement. Johnson has leaned on both.

When it laid down the Monroe Doctrine the United States had more mouth than muscle, and continually got into trouble; it was a giant when it laid down the Truman Doctrine, and has been in trouble ever since.

Presidents Washington, Adams and Jefferson, all isolationists, warned against alliances. But now the United States is in alliances around the world.

"Cultivate peace," Washington said in his 1796 Farewell Address but the United States has been in at least 10 foreign wars, an average of one every 17 years.

Five of them were undeclared — with France in 1798-1800, with the Barbary pirates twice in the early 1800s, the Korean war and the war in Viet Nam — and three of the wars probably didn't have to be fought at all — with Britain in 1812, with Mexico in 1846-48, and with Spain in 1898.

In addition American land and naval forces have been used at least 155 times to keep order, protect American lives, and carry out U.S. policy.

Avoid favoritism among nations in trading with them, Washington said, but the year before his administration had worked out a "most-favored-nation" deal with Britain. This, among other things, so angered the French they began the two-year undeclared war.

Philosopher Jefferson, the antislavery man who kept slaves, had other built-in contradictions: he was an isolationist and an expansionist. You'd think from his first inaugural that America had all the land it needed. The United States, he said, had "room enough to the thousandth and thousandth generation."

But even as he said it he was hoping the United States could help itself to pieces of the crumbling Spanish empire in America. And two years after he said it he bought the Louisiana Territory from France to get more land and avoid having the French for next-door neighbors.

For the United States, while it preached isolation, was hungry for trade and more land, which meant expansion. And those apostles of expansion, the war hawks and later the Manifest Destiny protagonists, helped push the United States into three wars: 1812, Mexican, and Spanish-American.

By the mid 1820s the Latin Americans had almost completely rid themselves of their European masters, particularly Spain, but President Monroe was afraid the French were going to barge into South America. He thought it necessary to warn them to stay out. This was 1823.

So he stated his doctrine, which might never have been written, if he had only known that two months before the French had promised the British they wouldn't move in. One historian said the doctrine was aimed at an imaginary enemy.

The doctrine left the Latin Americans cool, the Europeans cold. The Russian czar, like Premier Khrushchev many years later, expressed contempt. Americans themselves almost forgot it for the next two decades. This was the American more-mouth-than-muscle period when the Navy was hardly fit for more than coast defense. No wonder the doctrine contained no threats.

It simply said the United States would stay out of European affairs and told the Europeans not to try to grab territory in Latin America. Suppose they tried? All the doctrine said was that the United States could not view such intrusion with "indifference." But intrusion went on for years.

President Johnson was operating strictly under the Truman Doctrine in putting the United States directly into the war in Viet Nam. He was operating under the combined Truman-Monroe Doctrine in sending Marines to the Dominican Republic, although for some reason of his own he chose not to mention either doctrine.

He gave two explanations for his Dominican action: First, he said it was to save American lives in the revolution; but then he said it was to prevent Communists from getting control of the Dominican Republic.

This didn't satisfy some of his critics whose natural question: What about the agreement not to intervene in another country under any circumstances? And what about the right of each country to settle its own differences and work out its own destiny?

The answer would have to be, if Johnson gave one, that any president would act first for the sake of what he thought was his own nation's safety. He could point to a long list of his predecessors who thought the same.

Simple Measures To Prevent Mildew

By ELEANOR ROSS

There are improvements and breakthroughs in all directions, but two things still plague us — the common cold and mildew.

Well, we can't concern ourselves here with the medical problem, except to remember that cleanliness is the foe of germs.

But we can at least win the war against mildew, if we take but the time and the effort the struggle entails.

If you note a musty odor around the house, remember that mildew may be the cause. Prompt measures should be taken, because once mildew spores spread, they are very difficult to wipe out.

Cleanliness is basic to preventing and banishing mildew. It is especially important to keep closets and dresser drawers immaculately clean, because mildew just dotes and thrives on dirt. And, please remember, that even mildew-resistant synthetic fabrics can be victims if they remain dirty. Nothing seems safe!

Start by sponging closets, garment bags, and dresser drawers with hot soap or detergent suds on a regular schedule and by laundering washables after every use.

Make sure that storage space is kept dry after thorough washing, because moisture, too, provides a favorable environment for mildew.

Guard against dampness in the bathroom by spreading wet shower curtains, washcloths, and towels to dry after use.

Ventilation and heat are two other potent weapons against mildew. If necessary, place a de-humidifier in damp rooms or the basement, and install an electric light and/or an electric heater in any problem close or storage space.

Leave dresser drawers and closet doors open occasionally to air.

If mildew should gain a foothold in spite of every effort, brush off any surface growth outdoors so that spores won't be scattered in the house. Sunlight is an enemy of mildew so let air and sun get at the affected pieces.

Then launder washables in plenty of hot suds and rinse water. Bleach them if stains linger, and dry all pieces thoroughly.

Sponging with suds also helps to remove mildew from shoes, handbags, luggage and all items made of leather, one of the most susceptible targets for this miserable, undesirable household fungus.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Motherhood Is Fulltime Job

DEAR ABBY: A currently successful woman author seems to be harping on the theory that in order for a woman to be "fulfilled," even though she is a wife and mother, she needs a profession or a job outside her home. You are a "pro," Abby. How do you feel about that?

STAY-AT-HOME MOTHER DEAR MOTHER: I am one "pro" who is "con" on that theory. Motherhood (at least until the children are in school all day) is a fulltime job. And if done properly, it more than fulfills a woman. There is a greater responsibility than guiding a life. And no greater reward than the knowledge that you have done it well.

DEAR ABBY: My skin crawled when I read that letter from "Heartbroken Mother," pleading with all mothers to keep electric extension cords "unplugged" when not in use because of the tragic accident her child had when she put a "live" cord in her mouth. I want you and that mother to know that that letter has helped at least one thoughtless mother. I used to keep an extension cord for my vacuum cleaner plugged in to the wall behind my couch. That way I didn't have to pull out the couch each time I vacuumed. My ten-month-old daughter has just started to crawl, and when I think of how easy it would have been for her to get hold of that cord and put it in her mouth, my blood runs cold. I immediately disconnected that cord and it is now hanging in the broom closet. My thanks to you, Abby, for printing that letter. I lost one son to a congenital heart defect last year, and would hate to lose the only child I have left to electrocution because of my carelessness.

Sincerely, MRS. H.

—And because Sunday, June 13th is Children's Day:
A PARENT'S PRAYER
Oh, heavenly Father, make

me a better parent. Teach me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say, and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them or contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Forbid that I should ever laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame or ridicule when they displease me. May I never punish them for my own selfish satisfaction or to show my power.

Let me not tempt my child to lie or steal. And guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. And when I am out of sorts, help me, Oh Lord, to hold my tongue.

May I ever be mindful that my children are children and I should not expect of them the judgment of adults.

Let me not rob them of the opportunity to wait on themselves and to make decisions.

Bless me with the bigness to grant them all their reasonable requests, and the courage to deny them privileges I know will do them harm.

Make me fair and just and kind. And fit me, Oh Lord, to be loved and respected and imitated by my children. Amen.

DEAR ABBY: A currently successful woman author seems to be harping on the theory that in order for a woman to be "fulfilled," even though she is a wife and mother, she needs a profession or a job outside her home. You are a "pro," Abby. How do you feel about that?

STAY-AT-HOME MOTHER
DEAR MOTHER: I am one "pro" who is "con" on that theory. Motherhood (at least until the children are in school all day) is a fulltime job. And if done properly, it more than fulfills a woman. There is a greater responsibility than guiding a life. And no greater reward than the knowledge that you have done it well.

DEAR ABBY: My skin crawled when I read that letter from "Heartbroken Mother," pleading with all mothers to keep electric extension cords "unplugged" when not in use because of the tragic accident her child had when she put a "live" cord in her mouth. I want you and that mother to know that that letter has helped at least one thoughtless mother. I used to keep an extension cord for my vacuum cleaner plugged in to the wall behind my couch. That way I didn't have to pull out the couch each time I vacuumed. My ten-month-old daughter has just started to crawl, and when I think of how easy it would have been for her to get hold of that cord and put it in her mouth, my blood runs cold. I immediately disconnected that cord and it is now hanging in the broom closet. My thanks to you, Abby, for printing that letter. I lost one son to a congenital heart defect last year, and would hate to lose the only child I have left to electrocution because of my carelessness.

Sincerely,
MRS. H.

—And because Sunday, June 13th is Children's Day:
A PARENT'S PRAYER
Oh, heavenly Father, make

me a better parent. Teach me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say, and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them or contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Forbid that I should ever laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame or ridicule when they displease me. May I never punish them for my own selfish satisfaction or to show my power.

Let me not tempt my child to lie or steal. And guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. And when I am out of sorts, help me, Oh Lord, to hold my tongue.

May I ever be mindful that my children are children and I should not expect of them the judgment of adults.

Let me not rob them of the opportunity to wait on themselves and to make decisions. Bless me with the bigness to grant them all their reasonable requests, and the courage to deny them privileges I know will do them harm.

Make me fair and just and kind. And fit me, Oh Lord, to be loved and respected and imitated by my children. Amen.

Today's field was trimmed to 82 after a score of 146 or better was needed to stay in the competition's final 36 holes.

PGA king Bobby Nichols just squeaked in when he shot a 71 for a 146 total.

Lowly KC '9' Hands Tribe 5-2 Defeat

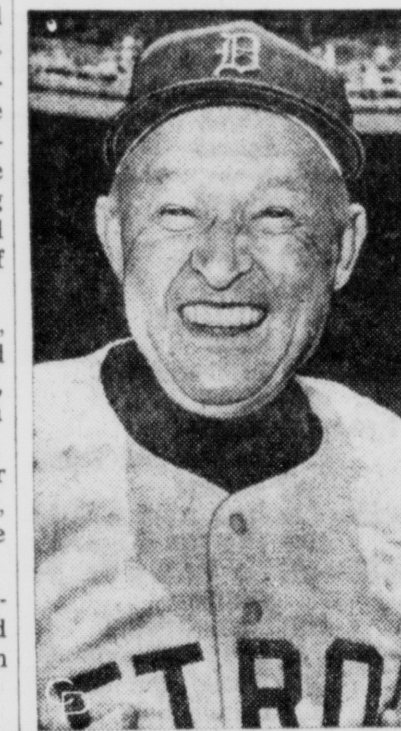

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Maybe somebody forgot to tell the Cleveland Indians what stadium they were in.

The Indians, who showed flashes of brilliance in taking three of four from Minnesota—currently the hottest team in the league—couldn't do anything right Friday night against the lowly Athletics, who proceeded to win their 13th of 47 games.

Vic Davalillo, who made some spectacular defensive plays in Minneapolis, was guilty of two errors of judgment that helped Kansas City score three runs and chase starter Jack Kralick in the second inning.

The Athletics wound up with a 5-2 victory as Roland Sheldon, former Yankee hurler, won his first game in five starts for KC.

The Indians mounted a rally in the fifth, when Max Alvis hit a home run and Davalillo and Fred Whitfield singled. But Sheldon pitched out of the jam. Two singles and a sacrifice fly brought in another run in the seventh, but again Sheldon got out of trouble.

JOLLY CHARLIE—And Charlie Drensen should be, too, for he has returned to the dugout to manage the Tigers after recuperation from a heart attack suffered in training camp and, additionally, his Tigers are up there in contention for the A.L. flag. Scene is New York.

Ohio State Is Confident Of Winning in Series

OMAHA (AP) — Ohio State Coach Marty Karow says "we've got the old desire, confidence and momentum" going into tonight's College world series title game with potent Arizona State.

The title game of the 19th NCAA tourney starts at 9 p. m. EST. Arizona State takes a 5-3 record into the showdown, Ohio State 30-12.

The Buckeyes spoiled ASU's perfect series record Friday night, halted their 16-game winning streak and got their first victory in five games with the Western Athletic Conference champions. The score was 7-3 with John Durant, a senior left-hander, firing a solid six-hitter.

Ohio State, led by swift shortstop Bo Rein, played errorless and outstanding defensive ball.

Durant, in his second series victory, held highly touted Rick Monday hitless in four trips.

Strous, reining William Arledge's Dudley's Dandy in the second race, brought the 8-year-old pacer under the wire in 2:06 1-5, the best winning time of his career. The local combination was well ahead of the field.

The long shot returned $70.60, $25.60 and $9.80 at the mutual window. In the fifth race, Strous finished second with Jim Arledge's Star Via Jean.

Ebenhack, driving Poplar Harry, won the seventh race, a $1,000 pace. The time of the mile was 2:04 1-5.

Owned by James T. Childress, Poplar Harry has started five races this season and won three of them.

Paul Brown Linked To Atlanta '11'

CLEVELAND (AP) — Paul Brown, organizer of the Cleveland Browns, may resume an active role in professional football if the National Football League puts a team in Atlanta, it has been reported here.

Brown has indicated an interest in going to Atlanta, where he has "influential friends," according to Charles Heaton, Plain Dealer sports writer.

"Atlanta authorities already are looking for a person with experience, prestige and ability to organize and coach the city's first pro team," Heaton said.

Lowly KC '9' Hands Tribe 5-2 Defeat

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Maybe somebody forgot to tell the Cleveland Indians what stadium they were in.

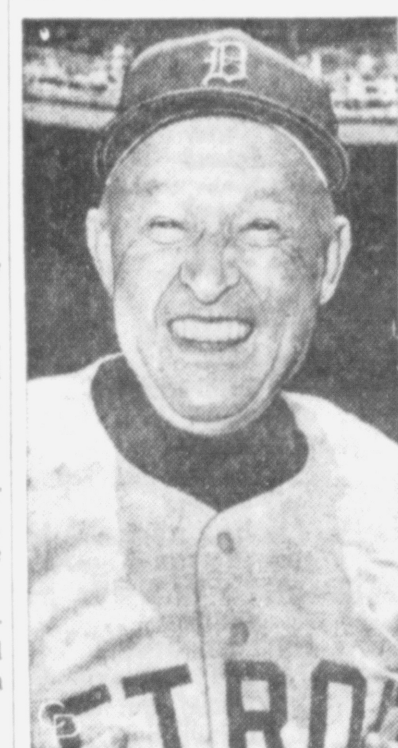

The Indians, who showed flashes of brilliance in taking three of four from Minnesota — currently the hottest team in the league — couldn't do anything right Friday night against the lowly Athletics, who proceeded to win their 13th of 47 games.

Vic Davalillo, who made some spectacular defensive plays in Minneapolis, was guilty of two errors of judgment that helped Kansas City score three runs and chase starter Jack Kralick in the second inning.

The Athletics wound up with a 5-2 victory as Roland Sheldon, former Yankee hurler, won his first game in five starts for KC.

The Indians mounted a rally in the fifth, when Max Alvis hit a home run and Davalillo and Fred Whitfield singled. But Sheldon pitched out of the jam.

Two singles and a sacrifice fly brought in another run in the seventh, but again Sheldon got out of trouble.

JOLLY CHARLIE—And Charlie Drensen should be, too, for he has returned to the dug-out to manage the Tigers after recuperation from a heart attack suffered in training camp and, additionally, his Tigers are up there in contention for the A.L. flag. Scene is New York.

Ohio State Is Confident Of Winning in Series

OMAHA (AP) — Ohio State Coach Marty Karow says "we've got the old desire, confidence and momentum" going into tonight's College world Series title game with potent Arizona State.

The title game of the 19th NCAA tourney starts at 9 p. m. EST. Arizona State takes a 53-8 record into the showdown, Ohio State 30-12.

The Buckeyes spoiled ASU's perfect series record Friday night, halted their 16-game winning streak and got their first victory in five games with the Western Athletic Conference champions. The score was 7-3 with John Durant, a senior left-hander, firing a solid six-hitter.

Ohio State, led by swift shortstop Bo Rein, played errorless and outstanding defensive ball.

Durant, in his second series victory, held highly touted Rick Monday hitless in four trips.

Connecticut Boxing Show Is Called Off

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — State Boxing Supervisor Dennis McMahon cancelled a scheduled boxing card Friday night, but said his action had nothing to do with the General Assembly's passage of a bill banning boxing.

The law passed Wednesday, will not go into effect until the governor signs it.

McMahon cancelled the card just as the five-fight card was scheduled to start. He said he acted because there were almost no fans in attendance.

Yanks Show New Life, Hop To 7th Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Yankees are higher today than at any time in the last four weeks.

The defending American League champions, who have been bogged down in the second division since April, continued their most sustained drive of the season Friday night as Al Downing staggered to a 13-hit, 6-4 victory over the Los Angeles Angels.

The triumph was the sixth in the last seven games for the Yankees. It hopped them over Boston into seventh place for the first time since May 15 and left them only one-half game to the rear of the sixth-place Angels.

At the top of the league, meanwhile, the first-place Minnesota Twins and runner-up Chicago White Sox remained a 1½ lengths apart, each sweeping two-night doubleheaders.

The Twins swept Detroit in a pair of extra inning games, winning both by 5-4 scores, the opener in 10 innings and the nightcap in 12 as Jimmie Hall produced the decisive run in each.

Reliever Eddie Fisher played the key role for the White Sox, saving Juan Pizarro's first victory of the season in a 5-2 opening game triumph over Washington, then turning up the winner in a 5-4, 10-inning second game triumph.

Elsewhere, Kansas City downed Cleveland 5-2 behind Rolfe Sheldon's first victory and Jim Landis' first homer and Baltimore edged Boston 5-4 on John Orsino's two-run homer.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the New York Mets 2-1, Milwaukee crushed St. Louis 8-2, Pittsburgh defeated San Francisco 5-3, Cincinnati nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3 and Philadelphia squeezed by Houston 6-5 in 10 innings.

The Yankees, outthit 13-10, got the job done with a pair of run-scoring doubles by Roger Maris, a run-producing double by Doc Edwards and singles by Bobby Richardson and Clete Boyer that drove in runs.

The Twins tied the opener in the ninth on two walks by Larry Sherry, a sacrifice and a wild pitch by Terry Fox that let Don Mincher score. Then, in the 10th, Hall brought in the winner with a sacrifice fly after singles by Sandy Valdespino and Frank Kastro plus a sacrifice by Tony Oliva.

Hall capped a three-run outburst in the 12th inning of the nightcap with a run-producing triple after Bob Allison's single and a sacrifice fly by Kastro had brought the first two runs across. Hall's triple proved decisive when Jim Northrup hit a two-run homer in the Tigers' half.

Harmon Killebrew drove in the first two Minnesota runs with his 10th homer and a single, but homers by George Thomas and Don Demeter pulled Detroit into a tie.

Coleman Hot As Redlegs Defeat Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Gordy Coleman, swinging the hottest bat in the National League, almost single-handedly slugged the Cincinnati Reds to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

The big first baseman won the game in the ninth inning when he crashed a one-out, two-run homer off Bob Buhl. Coleman started the game by slamming a run-producing double in the first inning.

The two hits brought Coleman's league-leading batting average to .364.

Catcher Don Pavletich accounted for the Reds' other run with his sixth home run in the second inning.

Cincinnati starter Sammy Ellis pitched no-hit ball for five innings and appeared headed for his 10th triumph. But the young right-hander was chased in the sixth when the Cubs took over the lead, scoring their three runs on four hits.

Cub shortstop Jimmy Stewart opened the sixth with a double and scored on Billy Williams' single. Williams reached third on a stolen base and sacrifice fly and scored on Ernie Banks' double. Doug Clemens' single scored Banks.

Joe Nuxhall relieved Ellis and stopped the rally. Nuxhall worked 1 2-3 innings and Billy McCool finished up to gain his third victory against three defeats.

Yogi Berra's playing comeback with the New York Mets this spring, after being out all of 1964, resulted in two singles in nine trips to the plate in four National League games.

Rail Stewardess Glamor Job Open to Australian Women

By ARTHUR SCHOLLES
Central Press Association Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia. — Another glamor job now is open to young New South Wales women — that of railway stewardesses.

A special training program aims at developing the same charm, beauty and efficiency for which air hostesses have a reputation.

The assistant general manager of the Department of Railways' training and catering services branch, W. Miller, said, "I suppose it would be unrealistic to deny that previous images of train stewardesses conjured up pictures of a young lass drably dressed and with a rather impersonal approach to travellers who wanted service."

"However, soon this will no longer be the case. The new training program these girls must now undergo started 12 months ago in a special training carriage where the girls are taught proper procedures and how to mix with the public."

"During the last six months the stewardesses were issued new and attractive uniforms to make them more pleasing to the eye," Miller said.

Miller said the girls' training period in the carriage lasted between two and three weeks. During this time they were put "through the ropes" under conditions they would be likely to meet on trains in N.S.W.

Miller said with this new approach to the facet of railway employment, applications for the job of railway stewardesses had increased many times over.

More than 300 applicants were received for the first batch of trainee stewardesses, but only 70 were selected.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — All is serene at old Ponderosa as "Bonanza" plunges into its seventh year of filming, without the services of Pernell Roberts.

Long the dissident member of the Cartwright clan, Roberts pulled out when his contract ended last season. That left Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker and Michael Landon to mind the ranch. They're managing quite well, says Mike.

"It's a heavier work load for the three of us this season," said the actor, the handsome Little Joe of the series. "But it's worth it. There is harmony on the set now."

Mike, the youngster (age 28) of the Cartwrights, and his co-stars were awarded a raise for the new season—from $4,500 to $10,000 per show. Plus payments for replays.

The new contracts extend for another six years. If options extend "Bonanza" to a full dozen years, the surviving trio could well be millionaires.

"It's great for an actor to have that kind of security," Landon said. He had personal doubts that the series would go the full route, since NBC may one day become anxious to cash in on the lush syndication market. The economics of television are such that it sometimes pays to take a series off the network to profit from replays in the daytime or on local stations.

"But I think we're good for a little while more," Mike said. "This has been our biggest year in the ratings. Even if we lost 20 per cent of our audience, we'd still be No. 1."

What is being done to explain the absence of Roberts?

"We won't kill him off; that would be too hard on the kids in the audience," Mike said. "He'll just be off teaching school in the East somewhere. We'll manage."

Small University Chapel Is Filling 'Important Void'

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — With a spire of copper, roof of slate and walls of native timber and gray shellstone, tiny Beck Chapel stands amid the educational skyscrapers of Indiana University to offer 20,000 students a place of meditation.

The success of this experiment in fostering an ecumenical spirit on the Indiana campus is measured by its sponsor and curator, Dr. Frank O. Beck, 93, whose gifts for the chapel total $100,000.

"This has filled an important void. We don't promote it or issue booklets on it, we don't try to prove its worth through statistics and we're not in religious education."

"We offer it as a satisfaction of the spiritual need for students—whatever their religious belief may be. I know of none like it in the nation."

Among religions presenting programs since the chapel was built in 1957 were Protestant, Jewish, Roman and Eastern Orthodox Catholic, Buddhist, Moslem, Hindu and Coptic.

The chapel has become the scene of weddings, christening services, organ recitals and memorial ceremonies. Social fraternities and sororities hold preinitiation services in it.

Beck said he has noticed that students have "come to the understanding that faith is a world concept. They have become more and more aware that the chapel is a place where they can cultivate a true love for one's brother."

When Beck retired in 1934, his career as a Methodist minister and an associate of Jane Addams in Chicago had led him through several social service missions. He also had been a traveler, teacher and student in Europe.

He returned to Indiana University, from which he had been graduated in 1894, and was asked by then President Herman Wells to organize a non-denominational religious program.

Atlanta Extends Lead in IL Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
If somebody doesn't start beating the Atlanta Crackers, they may turn the International League pennant race into a runaway.

The Crackers defeated second place Toronto 5-4 Friday night to push their winning streak to seven games and their lead over the Maple Leafs to 5½ games.

Buffalo beat Jacksonville 3-2, Syracuse whipped Columbus 8-3 and Rochester swept a double-header from Toledo, 6-1 and 9-3.

Rochester moved to within one game of sixth place Toledo. Billy Graham struck out 13 Columbus batters and hit the third of three consecutive home runs in the fourth inning to lead Syracuse to victory.

Four National League coaches of last spring are managers this year. They are Dick Sisler, Herman Franks, Luman Harris and Red Schoendienst.

PICKAWAY'S FIRST — The first producing oil well in Pickaway County is now in operation on the farm of Blanche Riggins in Jackson Twp. An estimated 250 barrels of oil have been taken from the well since Monday when pumping began. A "dry hole" was drilled recently on the farm, nearly one quarter of a mile from the producing unit.

Warplanes Rip Red Viet Boats

15 Craft Are Hit In Strike by U.S.

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. warplanes sank or damaged 15 boats today in an air strike about 120 miles inside North Viet Nam.

A U.S. military spokesman said the vessels opened fire on the four U.S. Air Force Thunderchiefs just before they attacked. The planes dropped eight tons of bombs on the boats during the 30-minute strike.

In another raid over North Viet Nam, the spokesman said 25 F-105 Thunderchiefs hammered several targets about 130 miles southwest of Hanoi near the Laotian border. They destroyed three buildings at the Muong Sen communications site and seven military barracks.

The planes dropped 30 tons of bombs on the targets. Light automatic weapons fire was encountered, but all the planes returned safely, the spokesman said.

Two U.S. Navy A1 Skyraiders cratered both approaches to a three-span steel bridge in an attack along Route 7 about 150 miles southwest of the North Vietnamese capital. Both planes returned safely to the carrier Midway.

In air strikes inside South Viet Nam, the spokesman said U.S. Navy planes flew some 70 sorties Friday against Viet Cong positions in the southernmost Fourth Army Corps area.

In the 1st Army Corps area, 15 U.S. Air Force F100 jets splashed 45 tanks of napalm and poured 750 pound bombs into a reported Viet Cong concentration 14 miles west of the Quang Tri Province capital.

Quang Tri is only 20 miles from the border with North Viet Nam, and senior corps officers were fearful that the Viet Cong were preparing a major follow-up to their successful meat-grinder operation in another part of the corps area two weeks ago.

Pilots claimed they set fire to an ammunition storage area, destroying 21 structures and damaging 13 others in the raid. Six other F100s hammered a suspected Viet Cong area with napalm and bombs near the U. S. Marines' outer defense perimeter along the Chu Lai beachhead, 53 miles south of Da Nang.

Warplanes Rip Red Viet Boats

15 Craft Are Hit In Strike by U.S.

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. warplanes sank or damaged 15 boats today in an air strike about 120 miles inside North Viet Nam.

A U.S. military spokesman said the vessels opened fire on the four U.S. Air Force Thunderchiefs just before they attacked. The planes dropped eight tons of bombs on the boats during the 30-minute strike.

In another raid over North Viet Nam, the spokesman said 25 F-105 Thunderchiefs hammered several targets about 130 miles southwest of Hanoi near the Laotian border. They destroyed three buildings at the Muong Sen communications site and seven military barracks.

The planes dropped 30 tons of bombs on the targets. Light automatic weapons fire was encountered, but all the planes returned safely, the spokesman said.

Two U.S. Navy A1 Skyraiders cratered both approaches to a three-span steel bridge in an attack along Route 7 about 150 miles southwest of the North Vietnamese capital. Both planes returned safely to the carrier Midway.

In air strikes inside South Viet Nam, the spokesman said U.S. Navy planes flew some 70 sorties Friday against Viet Cong positions in the southernmost Fourth Army Corps area.

In the 1st Army Corps area, 15 U. S. Air Force F100 jets splashed 45 tanks of napalm and poured 750 pound bombs into a reported Viet Cong concentration 14 miles west of the Quang Tri Province capital.

Six other F100s hammered a suspected Viet Cong area with napalm and bombs near the U. S. Marines' outer defense perimeter along the Chu Lai beachhead, 53 miles south of Da Nang.
